Congressman Colden at the Capitol

By CHARLES J. COLDEN - WASHINGTON, Nov. 17, (Special to The Herald) - The House of Representatives began the extra session in a restless mood.

Members seemed to be more interested in shaking hands with friends and a reunion rather than in the business of the hour. The noise and confusion were so great it was with difficulty that the roll was called.

Speaker Bankhead wielded the gavel vigorously and was obliged to suspend the roll call and rap for order a number of times.

Some of the Members preferred to stay at home until the regular session and were not very enthusiastic about an extra session that interfered with political and other affairs back home.

The President set forth four outstanding purposes of the extra session, first and foremost was the farm bill. He reminded Congress of its promise to pass farm legislation that would control production and stabilize prices.

There is much difference of opinion as to this bill, and it is difficult to reconcile the various and conflicting interests of the farmers throughout the nation.

Since it is first on the program, the House is merely marking time until this bill is reported out of the committee.

The second important piece of legislation is the Wage and Hour bill. This bill was already reported out of the committee in the last session and is now in a jam in the Rules Committee.

Since a majority of the Rules Committee are opposed to the wage and hour legislation, there is still some question as to its action.

Mrs. Mary Norton, Congressman from New Jersey, is chairman of the Labor Committee and has placed a discharge petition on the Speaker's desk.

If this petition receives 218 signatures, the bill will automatically be brought to the floor of the House. This appears to be the probable course of this bill.

There will be a lot of fighting over this measure, but the chances are that it will pull thru in some kind of shape.

The third part of the President's program is the reorganization of the executive departments. This is also a very controversial subject.

Every department and bureau of the government gets the jitters

when you talk about reorganization, for it seems that a number of overlapping bureaus will be consolidated and somebody will lose a job or his position in the shake-up.

And when you threaten a job of a man or woman in the government in Washington, you are getting yourself into trouble.

This time it looks like Congress will go into the subject in earnest. What the final result will be is very difficult to tell.

The fourth important measure is the bill providing for regional conservation and development of the natural resources.

This proposal divides the country into seven areas, and one of the chief purposes is to provide for the development of public power and the bringing of electricity to the use of all the people of the United States, including the rural sections.

It also provides for the conservation of the soil and of other natural resources of the country.

This conservation proposal has already aroused bitter controversy. Private power companies are bitterly opposing the further development of public power by the Federal government.

There will be bitter opposition to this measure.

OPENING BATTLE - Quite a partisan battle began the very first day of the extra session. The Democratic leaders of the House were planning to adjourn until the latter part of the week, or until the Agricultural Committee reports its bill to the House.

Republican members took exception to this adjournment and objected. Bertrand Snell, minority floor leader, had apparently agreed with Sam Rayburn, Democratic floor leader, on a program of adjournment, but some of the Republican Members got out of control and refused to agree to this program, so the House has been meeting and adjourning after short sessions.

MISSOURI PASTIMES - Your representative from the 17th District stopped off for a few days at Excelsior Springs, Mo., and took some mineral baths and treatments that were called massages, a polite name for a beating.

After you have been sweated and steamed and boiled and brewed, a masseur begins work on you and swats and slaps and pounds and punches and pinches and rolls and rubs and scrambles and scrubs until you feel like a swiss steak.

Missouri still affords some real thrills that are somewhat different from California. One is a mule rodeo, with a fancy name, the "Mulesta."

Another pastime is the corn-shucking contest. One hundred thousand people gathered out on a Missouri farm recently to see who was the best corn-shucker in the Middle West.

It compares with the famous football games of Southern California for public interest.

Here's a new idea for Southern California towns: The enterprising merchants of Excelsior Springs have what they call Coffee-and-Doughnut Day.

All you have to do is to come to town and with every 50-cent purchase you get doughnuts and coffee free.

And some of these eating places have not heard about the fancy prices of the cities. You can buy a meal for a corn-

Rotary, Kiwanis In Joint Meet

Members of the Torrance Rotary and Kiwanis clubs held a joint meeting at the latter organization's regular dinner-session headquarters, Daniels cafe, Monday night and enjoyed an inspirational talk by Dr. Ernest G. Bashor, retiring Kiwanis district governor.

On "The Niche of the Modern Service Club," President Robert Deinger presided. L. J. Gilmeister was program chairman and President Grover C. Whyte expressed the Rotary club's appreciation for being invited to the dinner-gathering.

Among the guests present were Dr. Newton J. Sarkisian, Los Angeles, who retires next month as lieutenant-governor of this district; J. Clark Sellers, noted Los Angeles handwriting expert who succeeds Dr. Sarkisian; John J. Berry, business manager of the Redondo Daily Breeze, who is president of the Redondo Rotary club and Charles Anderson, assistant postmaster of Los Angeles.

REPORT CARDS OUT - Last Friday marked the end of the fall quarter of school work in elementary schools here and in Lomita and report cards were issued Monday to be returned by the pupils before tomorrow.

shucker for 25 cents, and a big piece of pumpkin pie for five cents. Most of the towns have high school bands, all dressed up in colorful uniforms, and the boys and girls dance the Ozark Swing. Yes, they still have their gala days in Missouri.
